Straw, Scandinavia's first family of music has released a great new video "1965", a sweet story about humble beginnings and a family full of love, hope and dreams.

Straw has captured love on video, from birth to adulthood, a family moving forward and enjoying the best and surviving the worst of what life put before them. With a fantastic and melodious music background and captivating vocals, Straw is truly one of the only International bands that I think captures a style of “Down Home” Country and the “Red, White and Blues” of the American Blues / Rock Scene.

Without trying to place them in any genre, Straw is appealing to any and every musical taste, and though I have not seen them perform live, I can only imagine that is is not just a great show, but a “Happening” a performance that has to be experienced, a stunning display of talent from a family of musicians that puts a whole lot of love into every note.

Follow them on Social Media and join the family.
